Sailor's Contract Expires Next Monday and It Will Not be Renewed.

Tom O'Rourke, manager of Tom Sharkey, will no longer look after the affairs of the ex-sailor heavy-weight, for he announced last night that he had decided to let Sharkey manage himself in the future.

For many months, it is said, O'Rourke and Sharkey have had numerous talks. When the story was circulated a few months ago that Sharkey had left O'Rourke and would be managed by Jack Dougherty, O'Rourke boiled up and declared the sailor would fight under his management or not at all as his contract with him would prevent him from fighting in New York State under any other manager.

The war of the garter of the trouble between O'Rourke and Sharkey, and since that time they have had frequent quarrels, which no doubt have been responsible for O'Rourke's refusing to manage the "ship boy" fighter another year.

When an Evening World reporter asked O'Rourke about the matter last evening he said:

"I don't think I will manage Sharkey again. I intend to act as manager for only two fighters hereafter and they are Joe Walcott and George Dixon."

"Do you mean that you really won't manage Sharkey hereafter?"

"Yes I mean it. I will let him do for himself. He can manage his affairs better than I did," replied O'Rourke. "Do you think Armstrong, who you recently said you had secured for three years?"

"I won't manage him, either, for, as I said before, I will only be the manager of Walcott and Dixon," Walcott can look after him."

"I will not manage him, either, for, as I said before, I will only be the manager of Walcott and Dixon," Walcott can look after him."

NO GAINS IN STOCKS.

Sugar Tries a Spurt and Reading Leads the Railways.

Little animation was shown in the stock market today, and prices showed an inclination to fluctuate.

All along the list the opening quotations were from 1-4 to 1-2 per cent. below last night's closing, but the general trend was to make up this deficiency.

American Sugar lost 1-8 per cent. at the opening, but soon began to rise and at the close of the first hour was quoted at 1-16. The other industries were featureless.

The only traction stock that was bought to any extent was Brooklyn Rapid Transit, its price going to 4-13, with 5-16 as the opening quotation.

Trading in the railroad stocks was rather brisk, but prices showed a tendency to recede. Reading raised 1-8 per cent. at the opening, but soon began to recede.

The undercurrent of the opening quotation was somewhat during the second hour, but the fractional gains were scarcely noticeable. Southern Railway advanced 1-16, and the bond market otherwise was quiet.

Union Bag & Paper preferred was lifted 1-4, while Lackawanna's loss extended to 2-16, and Lackawanna fell 2-16 on a single transaction. Any general tendency in the market was indicated by the closing quotation.

The total sales of stocks today were 114,225 shares, and of bonds $58,000.

TO STOP THE MILLS.
Cotton Spinners Asked to Cease Work in October—Market is Still Excited.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 13.—The excitement in the cotton market here continues.

The General Committee of the Master Spinners' Federation has issued a circular advising members of the local association to cease work for at least two days in October.

Answers are requested to be sent before the adjourned meeting of the Federation takes place Sept. 21. The answers are expected to be practically unanimous in the affirmative.

Neill Bros. circular to-day estimates the drop of cotton at $20,000,000, subject to heavy reduction in case of early frosts.

12-CENT COTTON.
Increasing Fancy Prices May Send the Market Kiting to Record Figures.

The cotton market opened up from 4 to 17 points today and then became weak under heavy realizing sales and hammering by some of the leading bear operators, who seemed to think that a turn was about due.

After the first hour the market once more became very strong, its time making advances in some options of 25 points on a general buying movement. Trading was active and the market again much excited.

All sorts of fancy prices for cotton are now heard, one of the best-known operators on 'Change to-day predicting that 12 cents might be reached if the present state of the market continues.

In local circles to-day there were rumors dealing with the alleged supply condition of the Liverpool cotton houses, whose failure to fill contracts with Manchester spinners because of the Texas drought was said to cause them financial embarrassment.
